Citation Machine

Select the style (APA, MLA, Chicago, etc), choose your work format (on-line journal, print article, etc), enter in your information, and the citation is created for you, free of charge!

Easy Bib: "The Automatic Bibliography and Citation Maker"

Similar to Citation Machine, but only the MLA format is free; one bonus: enter ISBN number for a print source, and the whole citation is done for you! Register for a free account and the site stores all of your Works Cited pages for you.

KnightCite Citation Service

Almost identical to Citation Machine, and is updated regularly to reflect changes in MLA stylebook.

BibMe

The newest addition to automated citation sites, BibMe will only format in MLA format; also, website information may not be entered manually.

Keep in mind, *

MLA requires a URL (Web address) only when you feel the reader could not find the info without it, or if your teacher requires it.

If your teacher hasn't specified either way, it's always better to be safe than sorry: include it.
